

From 15 to 19 June 2026
At the University of Geneva

A large, light blue, irregularly shaped blob with a thin black outline. Inside the blob, the text "Indigenous rights are not a side issue – they are central to sustainable futures." is written in a bold, italicized, maroon font. The text is centered within the blob.

“Indigenous rights are not a side issue – they are central to sustainable futures.”.

COURSE LEADERS

Prof. Giuseppe Ugazio, Geneva School of Economics & Management, University of Geneva

Claire Moretto, Project Lead, Alimuradova Organisation

Kamila Ciok, CEO, Alimuradova Organisation

TARGET AUDIENCE

Bachelor's & Master's students, Ph.D. candidates, and junior professionals from all walks of life who are interested in indigenous people's rights & knowledge, sustainability, leadership, and community-based solutions for a sustainable future.

TUITION FEES

Junior professionals: CHF 1,100

External students: CHF 900

UNIGE students: CHF 250

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This one-week summer school explores how Indigenous Peoples' rights underpin sustainable development, environmental stewardship, and inclusive leadership.

Grounded in human rights frameworks and the UN 2030 Agenda, the course engages Indigenous perspectives, knowledge systems, and ethical approaches to sustainability.

Through interactive sessions and exchanges with Indigenous representatives, experts, and Geneva-based international organizations, participants gain practical insights to integrate Indigenous perspectives into sustainability initiatives responsibly.

LEARN MORE

